

HARRY N. MARTIN, P. O. BOX 324, ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Cherokees now live at gate of park which once they owned. The Cherokee Indians of the Qualla Reservation interest visitors to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park when they pass through the reservation on the way to the park. The Cherokees once owned all of the land now in the park. They continue their old crafts and sports and have a history as thrilling as that of the Exodus, which it resembles.
